

DEUS CULPA

PRESS KIT

Deus Culpa is a Modern Metal band formed in the heart of Athens, Greece in 2019 by Nikrod (Nick Tsiampaos) and Lorentzo Buhagier. They were introduced in the music scene with hard rock / metal sounds through their first EP "Roots".

They have just wrapped up their debut album, "Precarious," and now they're on the hunt for the matching record label to bring their music to the masses. In the meantime, they're keeping the momentum alive by hitting the stage wherever they can, spreading their sound and connecting with fans, old and new. Plus, they're already cooking up fresh tunes, ensuring there's plenty more to come from this group.

Despite the tumultuous backdrop of the COVID-19 pandemic, their first EP “Roots”, released in March 2021, garnered attention worldwide for its electrifying blend of hard rock and metal.

Drawing inspiration from the world around them, Deus Culpa's lyrics confront injustice with unyielding resolve, balanced by threads of hope for a brighter future.

As they continue to carve their path, Deus Culpa's music serves as a rallying cry for change, inviting listeners to join them on their journey. With each chord and lyric, they embody the belief that in the face of adversity, unity and optimism can light the way forward. The story of Deus Culpa is just beginning, and anticipation builds for the next chapter in their journey.

Members:

Vocals: Nikrod

In May 2022, Deus Culpa began performing live, sharing their energy with audiences across Greece and southern Europe. They joined Lone Survivors as the opening act for the Burning Mask Tour while also collaborating with various local bands for shows within their home country.

In 2023, Deus Culpa continued to make waves on stage. Notably, they opened for Matt Barlow and Freddie Viales' Ashes of Ares in Heraklion, Crete, as part of the Over the Wall Festival.

Later that year, in September, the band took the stage at the Soundart Festival in Malta, performing alongside Krishna, A Black White Satellite, and Grande Fox.

April 2024 marked a significant milestone for Deus Culpa. Representing Greece at the Metal Days Festival, their electrifying performance earned them an impressive second place, cementing their reputation as a band to watch.

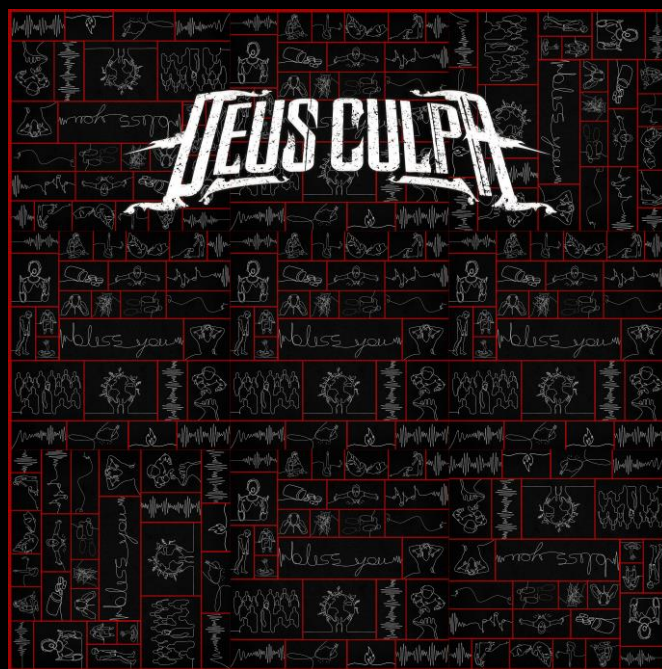

In July 2024, Deus Culpa was invited to join the lineup of the prestigious Metalhead Meeting in Bucharest, Romania. Sharing the stage with metal icons such as Judas Priest, Doro, Steel Panther, and Rotting Christ, the band held their own among legends of the genre.

The momentum carried into October 2024, as Deus Culpa returned to Romania to perform at the Rock n' Iasi Festival, further solidifying their presence in the international metal scene.

In recent months, Deus Culpa has begun unveiling new material from their highly anticipated debut album. The band has already released two singles, "So Many Years" and "Bliss You," each accompanied by striking music videos that showcase their unique sound and artistic vision. With more tracks and visuals set to drop in the lead-up to the album's full release, Deus Culpa is building excitement and momentum among fans and the music community alike.
